WORKSHOP INVITATION

Opposing New Nuclear Warheads and Bomb Plants:

A Primer to Empower and Inform Effective Activism to Move the Money and Achieve Disarmament

PEACE & PLANET CONFERENCE

Saturday, April 25, 2015

11 AM, Room 612, Pace University: One Pace Plaza, across from City Hall (Broadway & Murray St.)

Workshop participants include Marylia Kelley, Tri-Valley CAREs; Natalia Mironova, former legislator and founder, Movement for Nuclear Safety (Russia); Jay Coghlan, Nuclear Watch New Mexico; Moderated by Ann Suellentrop, Physicians for Social Responsibility-Kansas City

This workshop will expose the hypocrisy, and the financial and human costs, of “Life Extension Programs” that seek to indefinitely preserve US nuclear weapons while simultaneously endowing them with new, proliferation-provocative military capabilities.

It will also reveal the size, cost and mission of new U.S. production factories for the plutonium, uranium and nonnuclear components for nuclear weapons, expected to be operational until ~2075, contrary to US disarmament obligations under the nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

A Russian NGO perspective will be offered on these developments and the Russian government’s reaction to them.

This workshop will close by exploring positive, concrete and creative actions that US and global citizens can take to influence nuclear weapons policy and budgets, while pressuring their governments toward nuclear abolition.

Sponsored by the Alliance for Nuclear Accountability and the above-listed organizations

JOIN US!